16:15 – 16:30 Open Space Technology preparation

Facilitator: Karl Hopwood, Insafe

The Open Space Technology method is described as deceptively simple and highly strategic; passion + responsibility = action + high performance!

Colleagues are invited to prepare a session which will be delivered on Thursday morning which could be any of the following (or indeed something different):

- A discussion: use your fellow Insafe colleagues to explore new topics and areas where you want to gain expertise or exchange: this is a good opportunity to consider how different topics and issues are addressed and viewed in different countries. If helplines are seeing emerging trends, then this is an ideal forum to discuss and hear from others, with possible ideas and solutions.
- Input: prepare a topic that you think others will be interested in. Share your own experiences and approaches, but also use colleagues to gain feedback and insight on what you are doing and next steps.
- Trying out: If you want to try a new awareness-raising method or a new tool for your helpline, use your fellow colleagues to test things out and gain valuable experience.

Raise those topics which are of real interest, and which you can use immediately when back home. You do not have to prepare anything, but you can if you wish. Most importantly, there is a HUGE wealth of experience and expertise in the network: please make use of this. It is a strength of our network that we are able to bring together the leading experts in our field.
